Hearing no corrections or additions, the agenda was adopted by general consent.

DISPOSITION OF MINUTES

Chair Pollock requested additions, corrections, or changes to the minutes of the May 11, 2016 Board of Trustees meeting. Hearing none, the minutes were approved by general consent.

REPORT OF THE CHAIR

Chair Pollock began by noting this meeting was his first as Chair of the Board of Trustees. He observed that Trustee Evans was appointed by Gov. Kasich, effective June 16, replacing PJ Kimmell, whose term expired. She is a junior majoring in public relations. He also noted that Trustee Evans was one of the prominent faces in the Kent State anthem video and he thanked her for volunteering for the video and for the role as trustee. Chair Pollock then noted that Trustee Riley was also appointed by Gov. Kasich, effective May 19, replacing Dennis Eckart. Chair Pollock stated that Trustee Riley is a proud Kent State graduate whose son attends the university and that as of tomorrow, October 1, Trustee Riley will be the new president of McDonald Hopkins, a national business advisory and advocacy law firm based in Cleveland. Chair Pollock remarked that the Board was delighted to work with both of the new trustees and all trustees, but especially student trustees, who play vital roles in the life of the university.

Chair Pollock then acknowledged an additional guest, Chair Gary Brahler of the Kent State University Foundation Board of Directors. Chair Pollock thanked Chair Brahler for his attendance and support and stated that the Board looked forward to working closely with him and with the Foundation Board in taking Kent State’s philanthropic efforts to a new level. Chair Pollock also stated that Chair Brahler already has been working diligently to align the Board of Trustees and the Foundation Board in order to advance the university.

Chair Pollock then congratulated President Beverly Warren, Provost Todd Diacon, the faculty, staff, and students of Kent State University for a great start to the school year. He noted the positive momentum fueled by record enrollment, retention and student quality; a strong financial foundation; and abundant evidence of continued university-wide growth and vitality. He also made specific reference to the pride in the institution that he has noticed from the student body.

Chair Pollock thanked the trustees who accepted Board leadership roles for 2016-17 including Trustee Copeland as the Chair of the Academic Excellence and Student Success Committee, Trustee Stephen Perry as the Chair of the Audit and Compliance Committee, Trustee Stephen Colecchi as the Chair of the Finance and Administration Committee and Chair of the Compensation Committee, Trustee Della Ratta as the Chair of the External Relations and Development Committee and Chair of the Investment Committee, Trustee Albanese as the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee, and Trustee Michael Solomon as the Board Liaison to the Kent State University Foundation Board of Directors.

Finally, Chair Pollock expressed his pleasure regarding the day’s agenda as it reflected the university’s efficiency and budget realignment efforts that demonstrate a students-first approach. He stated that it is one of his goals as board chair to explore ways to devote more resources to students so that they receive a first-rate, high-quality education. With that, Chair Pollock called on President Warren for her report.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

President Warren began by thanking Chair Pollock for his remarks and his leadership and by reflecting on the excitement she noted throughout the September Board meeting. She then thanked Dean Bob Sines for hosting the Board in the Aeronautics and Technology building and engaging trustees with students and faculty. This interaction allowed the work of the university to come alive for and be celebrated by the Board members. She then echoed Chair Pollock’s remarks on the momentum of the university, referencing record enrollment and retention numbers, highlighting the more than 70 new faculty who joined Kent State, and a cadre of accolades that have been bestowed on the university.
President Warren also highlighted several physical changes to the campus, focusing on the Center for Architecture and Environmental Design. She noted that the building was highlighted in the New York Times.

President Warren then turned her attention to recent activities on campus that reflected the university’s focus upon and development of meaningful voice. She noted numerous examples from August and September that inspired students to find and use their voice, which included: the Freshman Convocation featuring author Wes Moore; the live broadcast of NPR’s On Point program highlighting four student leaders and a faculty member; the 100th anniversary of the College of Podiatric Medicine; and visits from several state and national political leaders.

While noting that the university’s positive momentum is something to be celebrated, President Warren also took time to recognize several people who have helped fuel this positive momentum. She began by noting Kent State’s 10th consecutive year of enrollment growth and thanked Dave Garcia, senior associate vice president for strategic enrollment management, and his team for their incredible efforts. Moving from enrollment to retention, President Warren praised the University College for ensuring students transition successfully from high school to college as well as identify a major that matches their passion and life mission. She recognized Dean Eboni Pringle and congratulated the team upon earning three national recognitions this past year including most recently, the Frank L. Christ Outstanding Learning Center Award of the National College Learning Center Association. Continuing on the topic of student success, President Warren noted the experience of students who stopped out of college for a multitude of reasons but who were academically capable and in good standing. She then thanked Senior Associate Provost Melody Tankersley for reconnecting with former students to encourage them to complete their degrees. Since 2014, this degree completion program has provided a pathway to earn a degree for 106 students and another 56 are slated to graduate this year.

President Warren highlighted the new Summer Undergraduate Research Experience (SURE) program, an eight-week immersion in research with a faculty mentor that has been described by many of its 33 student participants as “a life-changing experience.” She thanked Associate Vice President Doug Delahanty for his leadership. President Warren also pointed to the Florence 15 as another high-impact practice that enhances student persistence. These honors students, for the first time in university history, studied abroad at the Florence campus for the fall semester of their freshman year. President Warren acknowledged Interim Dean of the Honors College Don Palmer and Associate Provost for Global Education Marcello Fantoni for their leadership of this ground-breaking experience. She reminded the Board of the successful summer abroad experiences of several Upward Bound students, an effort championed by Vice President for Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Alfreda Brown.

Next, President Warren introduced two new faculty members – Dr. Cheryl Lambert, assistant professor in the College of Communication and Information, and Gregory A. King, assistant professor of theater and dance – who were recruited as a part of a program that has brought 16 new diverse tenure-track faculty to Kent State. She emphasized that Kent State is a more creative and better functioning place when classrooms are more diverse, when the university has diverse role models for students, and research is enriched by a diverse faculty community.

President Warren also recognized the impact of Kupita-Transiciones program, which is led by the Division of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion and enrolled 300 ethnically diverse students in a special four-day orientation program that has significant impact on student success. She thanked Dana Lawless-Andric, associate vice president in the Division of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, for her leadership in support of students in transitioning successfully to the college experience.

President Warren then turned her comments to the idea of a re-imagined public research university through a concept she called The Kent State Promise. She stated her desire for Kent State to be an exemplar of the public research university committed to high quality research and academic endeavors, but still cares for its students and puts them first. Toward this end, President Warren highlighted the university’s commitment to being a post-secondary education that can be within the reach of all people regardless of race, gender, ethnicity, socioeconomic background or ACT scores. She emphasized that The Kent State Promise does not begin and end with financial support alone. It acknowledges financial need and most importantly pledges to accept students where they are and to support them to define and achieve a pathway to successful degree completion. She highlighted that key to realizing the Kent State Promise is forging robust connections with the community and preparing students for a life and role in that community.

As a commitment to deep engagement with the community, President Warren highlighted the university’s intention to be named a Community-Engaged University by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. She described a community-engaged university as a place where students are engaged in experiential and service learning linked to classroom assignments and capstone opportunities such as internships and co-ops. In this environment, students also engage with communities and apply their learning to existing real-world problems. A university-wide taskforce led by Kelvin Berry, director of economic development and community relations, now is collecting and collating information that will support the university’s application, which will be submitted in April 2019.

President Warren cited four current university efforts that reflect the type of commitment and engagement that the Community-Engaged University classification recognizes: the Cleveland Urban Design Collaborative, the public service arm of Kent State’s College of Architecture and Environmental Design; the Rural Scholars Program, a partnership between eight Columbiana County area schools and the Salem and East Liverpool campuses that aims to enhance college attendance among rural youth; community-engaged research such as that of Professor Rick Ferdig, who through his NSF funded research has developed a new app called ParkApps Northeast Ohio in collaboration with the Cuyahoga Valley National Park and Cleveland Metroparks; and town-gown partnerships that leveraged the resources of Kent State, PARTA, the City of Kent, Fairmont Properties and Burbick Companies to create a destination town and a destination university. With that, President Warren concluded her report.
PERSONNEL ACTIONS

Chair Pollock asked President Warren to present the personnel actions. President Warren called on Provost Diacon to present the academic personnel actions, introduced the new Vice President for Human Resources Jack Witt, and called on Senior Vice President Mark Polatajko to present the non-academic personnel actions.

ACADEMIC PERSONNEL

Provost Diacon reported that the academic personnel actions were primarily routine in nature, but highlighted the promotion and/or tenuring of 144 faculty members, the request for emeritus status for five faculty members, and the appointment of Vice President for System Integration Nathan Ritchey. Provost Diacon also took the opportunity to recognize Trustee Carly Evans as a proud graduate of the Provost Leadership Academy.

NON-ACADEMIC PERSONNEL

Senior Vice President Polatajko reported that all non-academic actions to be considered at this meeting were routine in nature.

ACTION: There were no objections to placing personnel actions on the consent agenda.

Chair Pollock then moved to the committee reports and noted that committee recommendations would be placed on the Consent Agenda and acted upon in one motion, unless any trustee wished to remove an item for further discussion. Chair Pollock then called on Trustee Solomon to present the report of the External Relations and Development Committee on behalf of Committee Chair Della Ratta.

APPROVAL OF THE SERVICES AGREEMENT BETWEEN KENT STATE UNIVERSITY AND THE KENT STATE UNIVERSITY FOUNDATION, INC.

Trustee Solomon then introduced the next resolution for consideration pertaining to the approval of a new services agreement between Kent State University and the Kent State University Foundation, Inc. Trustee Solomon stated that the committee recommended that the resolution be placed on the consent agenda.

Turning to information items, Trustee Solomon noted a fundraising update from Vice President Sokany. Fundraising results year to date exceeded $6.3 million, compared to $3.9 million at this time last year. He also stated that the committee was informed of President Warren’s approval, consistent with university naming policy, of the designation of the Bittle Veterans Commons at Kent State University at Stark.
