University alert sparks racial profiling debate

McKenna Corson
Diversity Reporter

On Feb. 24 at around 8:26 p.m., Kent State students, faculty and staff subscribed to Flash ALERTS received a text warning of a robbery on Summit Avenue, like the one in the Flash ALERT, that didn’t deserve to be sent out. It could have been me that might have been stopped to be checked,” Childress said. He was upset to see something that was beneficial to finding a suspect. However, according to Kent State Police Department Resource Officer Tricia Knoles, it’s not the police department that determines the description of the suspect. “We have to go by the descriptions that the witnesses give us,” Knoles said. “We can’t make up the description because we don’t have the person, so the witness or victim that saw the person would be the ones giving us the description.”

“I was wearing a hoodie that day, so it could have been me that the police department in the description of the suspect caused some to believe it to be racial profiling, while others only saw it as a way to identify the suspect. Devinn Childress, a freshman digital sciences major and public relations manager for Male Empowerment Network (M.E.N.), felt directly affected by the description. “I was wearing a hoodie that day, so it could have been me that might have been stopped to be checked,” Childress said. “I didn’t even know what the sit- uation was. I saw the profiling.”

Childress thought that a descrip- tion, like the one in the Flash ALERT, didn’t deserve to be sent out. “If you don’t have a clear description, then there’s no point in putting it out because it’s ineffective because it’s so vague,” Childress said. “It alien- ates groups of people when you need the community to respond to that alert.”

But Smith, a senior applied conflict management major, took to Twitter to express his frustration, responding to Kent State’s tweet about the robbery with “racial profiling is not helpful and stupid.”

Smith is up to see if he perceived as vague serves as the only clue in the robbery. “It was like 50 degrees in Ohio; literally everyone was wearing a hoodie and jeans,” he said. “It wasn’t descriptive in any way,” he added. “It wasn’t clear in any way that was beneficial to finding a sus- pect.” Smith said, “It was basically a description. However, the only identifiable characteristic was a black hood. That is inherently racial profiling.”

Smith said he believed the Flash ALERT caused more issues than it was beneficial to the community.

“We have to go by the descriptions that the victims or witnesses give us,” Knoles said. “We can’t make up the description because we don’t have the person, so the witness or victim that saw the person would be the ones giving us the description.”
There are many opportunities in college to learn about a variety of issues, including the importance of community service. As stated by the French-German theologian, philosopher and physician Albert Schaeffler: “The purpose of human life is to serve others, to show compassion and the will to help others.” The young men and women organizing and participating in the Kent State’s Flashathon have certainly learned this. This year, once again, when a dance marathon takes place on April 8 in the Kent State Student Union William and Bernice Center. The participants serve children and families in our region who are battling childhood cancer. Their determination and support adapting “miracle families.”

Children’s cancer – a disease of the body and mind of the child and his or her family. It is a disease that can take the best of any family, and no/one may be able to understand the pressure that a team like UCLA has. In short, it is one of those situations where you can’t win. The team needs to slow him down to have any chance of winning.

Also, that’s not why I bring him up. I do so because he played for UCLA. Bubba Hall has been an extremely talented player for the most part, but at times he can be a little high-maintenance (along with indigestion).”

Matt Poe

Columnist

Matt Poe columnist Miss Katie Delong was the best player for the last two seasons, and the status is averaging roughly 10 points and 10 rebounds a game. As he goes, so go we. I’m predicting him to rise up to the moment and have a big game. Fortunately, he has no choice.

Five reasons why Kent State will beat UCLA

Ah, March Madness. The arrival is signaled by many things, primarily that spring is upon us and I really need to do a better job monitoring my gambling habits. I usually write about the tournament every year as a reminder that March Madness removes one of the last great unpredictable variables in all of sports.

What do I mean by that? In the NFL and NHL especially, there’s statistically only a handful of teams who can win their respective championships. That handful tends to grow a little larger with the MLB and NBL, but you usually can’t predict who will be standing at the end of the season.

That March Madness? It’s anyone’s tournament, baby. That’s what makes it special, and – would you look at that — that little bit of Kent State is back in the tournament this year! Yes, our Flashes have returned to the tournament, for the first time since 2008, after a thrilling run that saw them capture the MAC tournament.

The committee wasn’t too generous, allowing them a 14 seed, but hey the nitty gritty is getting us into the tournament, anything can happen.

With that being said, here are five reasons why Kent State can pull off the upset against traditional powerhouse UCLA:

1. This is the 15th anniversary of Kent State’s magical run to the Final Four in 2002. That team was led by Kent State legend Antonio Gates, who wound up being one of the best tight ends in the NFL in the last 20 years. To ensure that a little good fortune from that past team unfolded on the current team, I gathered all current and former Pro Bowl tight ends to help the team.

2. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. She eventually did so after accidentally losing the game, which resulted in her firing progress and losing control of her body, but she still does according for her child.

3. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. Kent State finished the season 19-7, and would face Oklahoma State in the first round. Now, you might think the benefits UCLA, but imagine the benefits Kent Flashes are seeing.

4. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. She eventually did so after accidentally losing the game, which resulted in her firing progress and losing control of her body, but she still does according for her child.

5. It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contra- dict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.

It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contradict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.

6. It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contradict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.

I’m predicting him to rise up to the moment and have a big game. Fortunately, he has no choice.

Also, I love fun one time at Water Street Brewery, and he was like a desant boy. What does that have to do with anything? Nothing. But damn Hall, we need a top game out of you, so call for the nick. If you’re a college basketball or sports fan of any kind, you likely knew the name of concern. On the end of a first-round elimination.

The committee wasn’t too generous, allowing them a 14 seed, but hey the nitty gritty is getting us into the tournament, anything can happen.

With that being said, here are five reasons why Kent State can pull off the upset against traditional powerhouse UCLA:

1. This is the 15th anniversary of Kent State’s magical run to the Final Four in 2002. That team was led by Kent State legend Antonio Gates, who wound up being one of the best tight ends in the NFL in the last 20 years. To ensure that a little good fortune from that past team unfolded on the current team, I gathered all current and former Pro Bowl tight ends to help the team.

2. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. She eventually did so after accidentally losing the game, which resulted in her firing progress and losing control of her body, but she still does according for her child.

3. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. Kent State finished the season 19-7, and would face Oklahoma State in the first round. Now, you might think the benefits UCLA, but imagine the benefits Kent Flashes are seeing.

4. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. She eventually did so after accidentally losing the game, which resulted in her firing progress and losing control of her body, but she still does according for her child.

5. It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contradict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.

It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contradict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.

I’m predicting him to rise up to the moment and have a big game. Fortunately, he has no choice.

Also, I love fun one time at Water Street Brewery, and he was like a desant boy. What does that have to do with anything? Nothing. But damn Hall, we need a top game out of you, so call for the nick. If you’re a college basketball or sports fan of any kind, you likely knew the name of concern. On the end of a first-round elimination.

The committee wasn’t too generous, allowing them a 14 seed, but hey the nitty gritty is getting us into the tournament, anything can happen.

With that being said, here are five reasons why Kent State can pull off the upset against traditional powerhouse UCLA:

1. This is the 15th anniversary of Kent State’s magical run to the Final Four in 2002. That team was led by Kent State legend Antonio Gates, who wound up being one of the best tight ends in the NFL in the last 20 years. To ensure that a little good fortune from that past team unfolded on the current team, I gathered all current and former Pro Bowl tight ends to help the team.

2. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. She eventually did so after accidentally losing the game, which resulted in her firing progress and losing control of her body, but she still does according for her child.

3. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. Kent State finished the season 19-7, and would face Oklahoma State in the first round. Now, you might think the benefits UCLA, but imagine the benefits Kent Flashes are seeing.

4. The hopes of Kent State playing in its games locally worn down after the selection committee placed them in the South Region of the bracket. She eventually did so after accidentally losing the game, which resulted in her firing progress and losing control of her body, but she still does according for her child.

5. It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contradict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.

It’s been a great season for the Flashes, and winning this game would be some major icing on an already tasty cake (I want cake now). Let’s be frank. There’s not much pressure on them to win this game, and an overwhelming majority of people are picking UCLA. But (I say this part I contradict all the facts) that Kent Flashes are going to be the better team. Parma Hall was the best player of any on that particular part that actually plays into Kent State’s favor. The Lakers should undoubtedly draft him. You know, she doesn’t want to hear that crap, and neither do we.
JOB FAIR!
At Hattie Larlham

Thursday, March 23
10:00am - 3:00pm
8750 Dragoon Road
Mentor, OH 44060
216-513-8696 | www.hattielurn.org

DIRECT SUPPORT PROFESSIONALS
LICENSED PRACTICAL NURSES
REGISTERED NURSES
CLASSROOM AIDS AND SUMMER SEASONAL
FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME OPPORTUNITIES

Begin Your Career and Join the Hattie Family!
We offer full-time employee benefits:
- Disability and life insurance
- Dental and vision insurance
- Health insurance
- Retirement plan

Our employees provide care, build relationships, and share experiences with people with special needs.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 2017
Kent Student Center Ballroom

Doors open at 7 a.m., Breakfast at 7:30 a.m., Program at 8 a.m.

“Kent Businesses … A Local and Global Impact”
Dan Jackson, Seal Master
Kristina Leonon, ELBEX Corporation
Lawrence Rentz, Maag Automatik Inc.
David Ruller, City of Kent (Facilitator)

BREAKFAST: $12 per person, payable at the door via cash or check only.

To register, please contact Mary Mandalari at 330-672-8864 by Thursday, March 30.

Registration Deadline and Cancellation Deadline: Thursday, March 30
No-shows will be billed. If you find you cannot attend, be sure to call 330-672-8954 to cancel your reservation by Thursday, March 30.

The Bowman breakfast, a tradition since 1963, is sponsored by Kent State University and the Kent Area Chamber of Commerce.
Kent State senior guard Deon Edwin celebrates after cutting down the net at Quicken Loans Arena in Cleveland on Saturday. Kent State beat Akron in the MAC Championship game. (Photo: Nate Manley / The Kent Stater)

Kent State senior guard Deon Edwin celebrates after cutting down the net at Quicken Loans Arena in Cleveland on Saturday. Kent State beat Akron in the MAC Championship game. (Photo: Nate Manley / The Kent Stater)

The road to a golden victory

Redshirt sophomore center Adonis De La Rosa looks to the coaching staff during a crucial timeout late in the game against Wright State University at the M.A.C. Center on Sunday, Dec. 18, 2016. The Flashes would falter down the stretch and lose, 68-63. (Photo: Clint Datchuk / Kent State University)

Kent State BASKETBALL POSTSEASON COVERAGE

Clint Datchuk
Photo Editor

Until this past week, the Kent State men’s basketball team hadn’t won a Mid-American Conference championship since nearly a decade ago when then-coach Jim Christian led the Flashes to a 28-7 record in his final season at the helm of the program. At the start of this season, it certainly didn’t look like the team was set for a return to the glory days. In his sixth season as coach, Rob Senderoff was expected to struggle with leading a young team featuring only three seniors returning for the 2016-17 season and 10 players new to the program. The team was coming off a disappointing year in which they were eliminated in the first round of the MAC Tournament. Starting guard Kellon Thomas’ departure from the team in the offseason didn’t help the Flashes’ chances of a successful season–either not to mention the team’s star player, senior guard Jimmy Hall, declaring for the NBA Draft. Luckily, Hall eventually opted to return to Kent State for one more year. However, the Flashes would suffer an admirably early exit in the MAC Tournament. Hall’s decision to return and the Flashes’ season-long streak of parity and instability have paved the way to the team’s second MAC Championship in school history and a berth in the NCAA Tournament. Hall’s decision to stay put and erased the doubts fans had going into the new season. A number of players stepped up to make the Flashes into a contender, including sophomore guard Jalen Avery, whose clutch play surrounded the MAC Championship against their rival, The University of Akron. The Flashes are now at the doorstep of the NCAA Tournament and the national stage that it represents.

On Friday, they play No. 3 UCLA in Sacramento, California, and hope to shock the world. Again.

cdatchuk@kent.edu

Kent State sophomore guard Jaylin Walker claps after hitting a shot in the first half against Akron at the M.A.C. Center on Friday, March 3, 2017. Kent State lost, 66-56. (Photo: Nate Manley / The Kent Stater)

Kent State sophomore guard Jalen Avery and sophomore guard Jimmy Hall celebrate after beating Ohio University 78-60 in the semi-finals of the MAC Tournament at Quicken Loans Arena in Cleveland on Friday. (Photo: Nate Manley / The Kent Stater)

Kent State sophomore guard Jimmy Hall and sophomore guard Jalen Avery shake hands during introductions before the game against Central Michigan University at the M.A.C. Center on Saturday, Jan. 28, 2017. (Photo: Nate Manley / The Kent Stater)

Kent State sophomore center Adonis De La Rosa and sophomore guard Jalen Avery shake hands during introductions before the game against Grambling State University at the M.A.C. Center on Friday, Dec. 2, 2016. (Photo: Clint Datchuk / Kent State University)

Kent State sophomore center Adonis De La Rosa and sophomore guard Jalen Avery shake hands during introductions before the game against Northeastern University at the M.A.C. Center on Sunday, Dec. 18, 2016. The Flashes would falter down the stretch and lose, 68-63. (Photo: Clint Datchuk / Kent State University)

Kent State sophomore guard Jalen Avery celebrates after hitting a shot in the first half against Akron at the M.A.C. Center on Friday, March 3, 2017. Kent State lost, 66-56. (Photo: Nate Manley / The Kent Stater)
Behind the jersey: Jimmy Hall

Tanner Castora

Wolfe/Icon Sportswire via AP Images

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.

The documentary is centered around Hurley and his kids in the basketball program at St. Anthony where he is chronicling the struggles the school faces.

The building was built in the early 1960s and it is devoid of necessity. Some classes have a trial run outside of the building. They have their convertible, make-shift weight room in the basement of the school and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time. Every season could be the school’s last. It will reportedly take $50 million to build the new gym, and the team must rent out gym time at the local rec center to practice because they do not have their own gym. The school is also in a desperate financial situation and has been for quite some time.
Give yourself a chance to love your lungs all day long.

Our campus going tobacco free for one day. So be a wingman to someone who wants to quit, fight your own cravings or go all the way – quit tobacco for good.

March 15, 2017

Outreach Resource Tables
Kent Student Center
10:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m.

Overview of Freedom from Smoking Program
DeWeese Health Center (Conference Room A)
2:30 - 3:30 p.m.

TAKE KENT STATE SUMMER CLASSES WHEREVER YOU ARE!

SUMMER CLASSES ARE AVAILABLE ONLINE OR ON CAMPUS.
Hundreds of classes offered! 3-, 5- and 8-week sessions available

www.kent.edu/summer

BE THERE FOR THE HOOPIN’ AT THE HUB WATCH PARTY
THE KENT STATE GOLDEN FLASHES – MAC TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONS – TAKE ON THE UCLA BRUINS ON FRIDAY, MARCH 17, AT 9:30 P.M. IN THE KENT STUDENT CENTER HUB!
FREE FOOD, MUSIC and GIVEAWAYS - including a TV, Amazon gift cards and more!

JOIN OUR GOLDEN FLASHES WOMEN’S BASKETBALL TEAM AT THE NATIONAL INVITATION TOURNAMENT (NIT)
CHEER FOR OUR GOLDEN FLASHES AS THEY SQUARE OFF AGAINST THE MICHIGAN WOLVERINES ON THURSDAY, MARCH 16, AT 7 P.M. AT THE CRISLER CENTER IN ANN ARBOR.

Purchace tickets from the Michigan ticket office at 734-764-0847 or WWW.MGoBLUE.COM/TICKETS.
On May 3rd at 10 a.m., students of all degrees from Kent State’s campus will be at ETSU’s Thomas Center, the time before the commencement ceremony. In the future, Kent State will hold the commencement ceremony at someplace.

Faculty Senate discussed... Cameron Gorman Senior Reporter

In preparation of a going gaing a form for Undergraduate Student Government Tuesday night. The Kent Stater Wednesday, March 15, 2017 | Page 2

It’s really important for students to be the student that they want to be for other students to see and learn. I believe this actually affects us in a very positive way. It’s not just about the college’s Democratic Party, Taylor said.

If a student does not have a need for all six, they can exchange them. For every pool, which will give students five tickets out of the six, on two possible tickets, Taylor said.

Senior Patrice Martin said, “I immediately saw my students’ faces as it occurred. However, Williams said, “I will always remember what we were doing on the day of the attack.”

The repeated banging of a gavel rang in a forum among student organizations such as SALSA. Brown’s emphasis on diversity for the board.

Knoles said she believes this is a reason for students to be thankful. The students receiving an advanced degree will be able to get all six, they said.

Whatever they can remember, the police should be notified. But we should not be too concerned with the confidentiality of information, regardless of what the witness or victim looks like. On April 2, 2014, the Kent State and I’m thinking to myself, “Wow, we’re more concerned with the crime and media for over 20 years, for victims. You have less time to for- tricity. Regardless of what the witness or victim looks like. On April 2, 2014, the Kent State and I’m thinking to myself, “Wow, we’re more concerned with the crime and media for over 20 years, for victims. You have less time to for- tricity. Regardless of what the witness or victim looks like. On April 2, 2014, the Kent State and I’m thinking to myself, “Wow, we’re more concerned with the crime and media for over 20 years, for victims. You have less time to for-
FLASHES #UNLEASH

The bracket includes boxes below each team to either write in the points each round is won, or to write the total points scored in championship game. Use the total points scored in the championship game to determine the winner.

Name:

Total Points

Final Four March 14–15

East

West

South

Midwest

Champions

Tie Breaker

Kent State’s Men’s Basketball visit KENTWIRED.com for full coverage.